Former Frankfort Telegraph Operator Dies In Chicago

Mr. Fred W. Cross, aged 88 years, passed away last Sunday in the Jackson Park hospital in Chicago of a heart attack.

Mr. Cross was telegraph operator at the Michigan Central railroad in Frankfort more than 50 years ago. During this time in which he lived in that village he helped to lay out the first baseball diamond there.

It was July 4, 1889, when Frankfort was celebrating the day with a big picnic, when a sudden snow blizzard occurred and Mr. Cross carved that day and event on the door of the depot, which still remains today.

For many years Mr. Cross has been chief clerk at the Chicago Terminal of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. He was a frequent visitor in the home of his grand daughter, Mrs. Frank Sizer, in Mokena, having been a guest there the day before his death when he was removed to the hospital when taken ill.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the Lain Funeral Chapel in Chicago, with Rev. Wm. Reimann, pastor of St. John Evangelical Church in Mokena officiating. Burial was in the family lot at Oak Hill cemetery in Hammond, Indiana.

Special Services Mark Armistice Day Program

Armistice Day in Mokena was observed by special services, when the Wm. Martin Post, No. 725, Veterans of Foreign Wars, dedicated a Memorial in the Veteran's plot in St. John's cemetery south of Mokena.

In the formation at the cemetery was the Post members, their Auxiliary members and Girl and Boy Scouts. Also many townspeople turned out to attend the service.

The memorial, which is a granite stone about four or five feet high and about three feet wide has been erected by the Wm. Martin Post V. F. W. as a monument to those who served in the armed forces. The inscription on the stone reads: "In Memoriam. To those who served in the armed forces of the United States of America. Wm. Martin Post 725, Veterans of Foreign Wars."

A new flag given by the Post also was raised to half mast on the flag pole, then later to full mast.

Mrs. Maude Larson, of the Auxiliary spoke briefly and then placed a wreath at the foot of the monument. Mr. Don Neal, Commander of the Post spoke and told the meaning of the memorial and that it commemorated the deeds of those who entered the services of their country. He also placed a wreath at the foot of the stone.

At the close of the brief services, the flag was again furled.

MANY MOKENA PEOPLE ATTEND AMATEUR HOUR

About 25 members of the Wm. Martin Post 725, V. F. W. Auxiliary of Mokena and their friends attended the annual party given by Mr. Morris B. Sachs in the Civic Opera House last Sunday. Admittance to this show was by one or more packages of cigarettes and for every package given Mr. Sachs also gave one. These cigarettes are being distributed this week to the veterans in the hospitals, who look forward to this occasion with great anticipation.

WHY BUY CHRISTMAS SEALS WHICH WILL BE SENT TO YOU BY MAIL SOON?

The Will County Tuberculosis Association is one of 2,900 voluntary organizations affiliated with the National Tuberculosis Association which are participating in the 40th annual Christmas Seal Sale from November 11 to December 25.

From coast to coast, from the Canadian to Mexican borders, in the United States territories, the Seal Sale is being held to raise funds to support the tuberculosis control programs of these associations, to support activities which are directed, on the local, state and national levels, to conquering tuberculosis, one of men's oldest and most deadly enemies.

Each of us is asked to cooperate with our local associations by purchasing Christmas Seals. We are not asked to make a large contribution, just to buy a few dollars' worth of Seals. It will not hurt any of us to make the small contribution requested. It may hurt us not to buy Christmas Seals.

The money which each of us spends in buying Christmas Seals cannot do very much by itself, but together with the contributions of our next door neighbor and his neighbor and of all our neighbors in the community, our dollars can become a powerful weapon to protect us from the dangers of a contagious disease which kills approximately 55,000 Americans a year.

The small contribution which we make to the Christmas Seal Sale will be forgotten in a day or so. And yet, throughout the coming year, we shall receive returns from our money.

We shall receive returns in the form of services performed by our tuberculosis association to protect us, our families and our friends, from a wasteful, costly disease.

We shall receive returns in the continuation of such services as: Tuberculin Testing in Schools, Mass Chest X-Ray Service, Health Talks, Health Movies, Health Poster Service, Health Literature, Free Tuberculin to Physicians, and Rehabilitation Service.

We are really buying health insurance when we buy and use Christmas Seals.

INVITATION FROM LADY BUGS

The Lady Bugs an auxiliary of the Cooties, of the Aurora Chapter, has extended an invitation to the Wm. Martin Post V. F. W. Auxiliary to attend their installation this Sunday evening at 7 o'clock in the V. F. W. hall in Aurora at 228 Main street. Several of the Mokena Auxiliary are planning to attend.

Died In Mokena Home Wednesday

Helen Ruth Geuther, aged 11 years, daughter of Robert and Erna Geuther, nee Yunker, passed away in her home suddenly Wednesday, November 13, about 8:45 A. M.

Helen, who had been afflicted with a heart ailment since an attack of scarlet fever several years ago was a student in the Mokena Public School, being in the sixth grade. As she was about to leave her home for school, she went back and sat down on a chair not feeling good, when she toppled over with a severe heart attack and died instantly. Her mother and grandmother was near by and caught her. Helen was a happy little girl and a good student.

Surviving besides her parents, are two sisters, Anita and Janet; Grandparents Mrs. Nicholas Geuther and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Yunker, all of Mokena.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon in the Immanuel Lutheran church in Mokena, with the pastor, Rev. A. W. Gode, officiating. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

FRANKFORT SPORTSMEN CLUB TO MEET NOVEMBER 18

The first meeting of the Frankfort Sportsmen's Club will be held Monday November 18 at 7:30 P. M., in the Village Hall in Frankfort.

In addition to the regular business meeting, Mr. Ernest Wunderlich of Joliet will show moving pictures of "A Trip To Canada", which he took on a trip to that country.

All person interested are invited to attend and become members. This invitation is extended to the farmers as well as to the townspeople.

TO SPONSOR DRIVE IN MOKENA FOR MEMBERSHIP IN CIVIC CONCERT SERVICE

Workers are being sought in Mokena to offer membership in the Joliet Civic Music association which will sponsor a number of concerts at which time outstanding artists will be presented. These will be given in the Joliet township high school.

Under the civic music plan only members of the association may attend the concerts presented each season. Membership is available only during the membership drive of Nov. 18 to 23 inclusive. Annual membership dues are to be $6 for adults and $3 for student including tax which entitles the owner to attend all the concerts without any further payment.

19 CHURCH DENOMINATIONS BAND TOGETHER TO FIGHT COMMUNISTIC INFILTRATIONS

Six thousand ministers in nineteen church denominations, nation-wide, have banded together in a crusade known as Spiritual Mobilization to combat the peril to spiritual freedom because of communist infiltrations and due to a rising pagan level toward a mortal God state, according to announcement made by Dr. James W. Ffield, Jr., founder and director of the organization. The movement is locally represented by Rev. J. Frank Anderson of Tinley Park.

This crusade for freedom, which recognizes man as a child of God and as such master (not slave) of the state, sponsors the return to the American way of life with its democratic process and constitutional government. Its advisory committee is headed by such notables as Dr. Donald J. Cowling, former president of Carleton College; Roger W. Babson, the statistician; Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed, Bible scholar and author; Dr. Rufus B. von Kleinsmid, chancellor University of Southern California; Alfred Noyes, poet; Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, president University of California; Dr. Robert A. Millikan, president California Institute of Technology; Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, clergyman; Hon. Albert W. Hawkes, United States senator; and others.

LOUIS HOLM & SONS SELL TWO REG. HOLSTEIN BULLS

Louis Holm & Sons recently sold two registered Holstein Bulls. Edwin Yunker purchased one who's Edm is making well over 500 lbs. fat as a 3 year old. The other bull, a grandson of Oak Bend King Bess Perfection 808860, and sired by Mooseheart Admiral De Kol 860374 whose ten nearest Dams average 831 lbs. fat with 3.8 per cent test, was sold to Lloyd Heisner of New Lenox.

Bull calves are arriving in Mr. Holm's herd from his herd sire Duke Etta Rue Bess, a son of the Gold Medal Sire, Acme Inka Rue Bess 663949 (V. G.) who has daughters with records from 600 to 965 lbs. of fat. Anyone interested in these calves should notify Mr. Holm as soon as possible.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to all relatives, friends and neighbors, also to Miss Blum and the school children for their help and sympathy given us at the sudden death of our beloved husband and father, Peter Smith. We also want to thank those who sent flowers and cards.

MRS. CARRIE SMITH AND FAMILY.

Spotlight on GRANTLAND RICE

JUST how long the new boom that has hit sports of every variety will last is anybody's guess.

This includes baseball, football, racing, basketball, golf, hockey, tennis, boxing, curling, bowling, shot putting, table tennis, gin rummy, javelin throwing, hunting, fishing, automobile racing or jumping through a hoop. Tail-end baseball teams draw over a million. Many times beaten football teams pack the stands.

Grantland Rice

Promoters or others who take credit for this amazing public surge in their own line are merely being goofy. They don't even have to be smart or good. Just open the gate. Make it a dogfight. It doesn't seem to matter.

But there is at least one detail that can't be missed. In this country or nation of some 3 million square miles and some 140 million sport-loving people, there is room for two major professional football leagues.

The New York Giants proved that when, facing double competition from the Yankees and the Dodgers they packed the Polo Grounds with their greatest crowd. The Cleveland Browns, in the new league, have passed any expected mark. They have set new records up above 70,000.

So far, in their exhibition and their scheduled games, both leagues have gone far beyond early expectations.

The situation hasn't been so hot in several spots, including Los Angeles—a hot college center—but the general average has been exceptional.

The Giants could play at least one game a season before 100,000 spectators—if there were room enough to park the human frame.

We still believe, as far as the two leagues are concerned, that there is room enough in this country for 16 pro teams, 8 in each league. And both leagues can save enough to pack a mint by working out the same arrangement the National and American baseball leagues have today.

The rivalry of the two leagues has made baseball what it is. The same inter league rivalry, with a postseason championship, will be just as effective for pro football.

In such an event, we could have results thrown against futile arguments.

The Two Best Backs

Several correspondents have written in lately, asking if any other football team ever had a pair of backs to match Blanchard and Davis, Army's terrifying football twins. Let's look at the record, as Al Smith used to say.

Carlisle's Indians once had Thorpe and Guyon—not too bad. Harvard had Mann and Brickley. Yale had Coy and Philbin. Michigan had Heston and Boss Weeks. Cornell offers Pfann and Kaw. Pennsylvania had Hollenback and Manier. Stanford had Grayson and Hamilton. Notre Dame has had many great pairs—a longer list than most of the others.

Minnesota, Tennessee, Alabama—these and many others—have had strong backfield combinations, counting only two men.

But we can't locate at the moment any other combination that ranks with Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis in all-around ability and destructive effectiveness.

In making a complete check you'll come upon these facts—

1. Davis and Blanchard are brilliant ball carriers, through the line or out in the open. Both are extremely fast.
2. Both can throw a pass and both can handle a pass.
3. Both are excellent blockers.
4. Both know how to tackle and are strong defensively.
5. Both are dangerous opponents against a rival pass.
6. Both can kick.
7. Both are packed with stamina and durability and both give all they have at every start. Neither is temperamental or swelled-headed. They happen to be two fine kids who play the game for the love of it.

In looking back many years over a long list we can't locate any team that had any such pair among its backfield talent, not for a few games but through the greater part of three hard seasons.

When you've seen Blanchard and Davis turned loose on some field you've looked upon the best that football has ever had to offer.

About Bob Neyland

Bob Neyland of Tennessee, now General Neyland, an old West Pointer, left his coaching job in 1942 for army duty.

It was generally accepted that it would take Neyland a year or so to rebuild a winning team against the powerful opposition the South always offers. But in his first year back we find Neyland's volunteers heading the Southern parade, at least a stride in front of Wally Butt's Georgia delegation.

Material Available For New Grain Bins

Inexpensive Materials Proving Satisfactory

Despite material shortages, construction difficulties are minimized in a new type grain storage bin developed by the Commodity Credit Corporation, USDA. The bin uses inexpensive materials which are not crucially scarce and can be erected by unskilled workers in about 30 man-hours.

A North Dakota station version of the temporary grain storage.

The bin is demountable and portable and may be stored when not in use. The capacity of the bin is 1,300 bushels.

This bin is constructed almost entirely of asphalt roll roofing. For the floor, asphalt roll roofing is laid directly on the ground. For the sidewalls, it is reinforced with woven wire. For the roof, it is supported by the bulk of grain inside.

Because this is a "tight" bin, it is not suitable for storing moist grain. Dry grain keeps satisfactorily for a year, provided the bin is properly built, roofing is not damaged and the bin is fumigated when necessary.

KNOW YOUR BREED Berkshire By W. J. DRYDEN

Good example of Berkshire sow, an excellent meat producer.

Berkshire is one of the oldest improved breeds of swine. Of English origin, they were reported in a high state of perfection as early as 1780.

The Berkshire was first imported into America in 1823. The world's first swine registry, the American Berkshire association, was formed in 1875.

Berkshires are of medium size, generally smooth, black except for the six white points that occur rather uniformly in the face, on the feet and brush of the tail.

Mature boars will run from 800 to 900 pounds, mature sows from 700 to 800. Their meat is of good quality. Berkshires are known for their trimness throughout and for excellence of carcass. Their record in market shows, both on foot and on the hook, is noteworthy.

No Greater Pest Has

Cattle Than Horn Fly

Horn flies cause damage among cattle by loss of blood, spread of disease, predisposes to screw worm infestation, loss of meat and milk and loss of feeding time.

DDT offers the first real relief of cattle against this pest. Cattle treated with DDT sprays have shown gains of 50 pounds over those not treated. One pound of wettable DDT powder (50 per cent) in 30 gallons of water will provide enough spray or dip to treat about 100 animals at a cost of about one cent for each treatment.

Horses Are Allergic

To Soaps and Oils

New research has disproved the old idea that a horse's heavy coat of hair is complete protection against allergic skin diseases, American Veterinary Medical association has reported.

A series of tests proved that dermatitis was caused by a combination of "wool yellow dye" in a saddle soap and "sulfonated neat's-foot oil" in a leather conditioner.

Tomato Blight May

Disappear in 1947

Tomato growers, whose crops were ruined by the late blight, need not worry about next year's crop as the disease is not likely to recur unless weather conditions are again favorable, according to Andrew S. Wing of the National Garden institute. A wet cool August with cool nights is favorable to the development of this fungus disease whose spores are windborne, causing great damage.

Tinley Park News

IN MEMORIAM

In sad and loving memory of our beloved husband and father who passed away 7 years ago November 14, 1939.

When we leave this world of changes,
When we leave this world of care;
We shall find our missing loved ones
In our Father's mansion fair.

—MRS. LENA SCHANZ

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Aldehoff have returned from Cabool, Mo., where they plan to make their home.

Miss Bonnie Gutherie of St. Paul, Minn., was a guest at the Clarence Brown home the past week.

Mrs. Clarence Brown entertained Saturday. Bridge was played, honors going to Mrs. J. Norman, Mrs. J. Preussner and Mrs. S. Bard.

The Bremen Harmonizers will hold a Thanksgiving party Friday Nov. 22 in Jo Ann Beck's basement, 17210 Oak Park Ave. This will be a costume party with the costumes representing something of Thanksgiving. Prizes will be awarded for the prettiest and most original. The time will be 7:30 P. M. Don't forget the date and your costumes.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Bettenhausen of Wishek, N. D., arrived in Tinley Park Wednesday evening and will spend a few days visiting with Oliver's brother Ben Bettenhausen.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Walter Elbers who passed away one year ago November 14.

Long days, long nights you bore your pain,
Waiting for health, but all in vain.
God saw that you were suffering
And that the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed your weary eyes and whispered:

"Peace be thine."

MOTHER AND FAMILY.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 10, was:

"ADAM AND FALLEN MAN"

The Golden Text was:

"If by one man's offence death reigned by one; much more they which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ." (Rom. 5: 17).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; . . . So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them . . . But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul . . . As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy; and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly." (Gen. 1: 26, 27; Gen. 2: 6, 7; 1 Cor. 15, 48).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Spiritually followed, the book of Genesis is the history of the untrue image of God, named a sinful mortal. . . The Science of the first record proves the falsity of the second. If one is true, the other is false, for they are antagonistic. The first record assigns all might and government to God, and endows man out of God's perfection and power. The second record chronicles man as mutable and mortal, as having broken away from Deity and as revolving in an orbit of his own. Existence, separate from divinity, Science explains as impossible." (pp. 502, 526).

Rufe's Ramblings

If such an incident as this should happen on a train coming into LaSalle Street Station instead of writing a Rambling about it I will merely tell the young fellow to go to the station master's office and get Miss Fikrie to announce, "Meet your party at the gate at track 16." But we had no loud speaker system in the depot in Windy Mountain and he was expecting to be met by a brother whom he had not seen since they were four years old. "I was reared up north and he has grown up down here," he told me in a Yankee jargon when we were nearing the terminal. "Just circumstances. But a group of my neighbors were bold hunting in the hills and they gave me a good description of him. . . tall and skinny and shows the effect of hook worm . . ."

Well, after unloading all the passengers I walked into the waiting room where the crowd was and seeing the fellow who was looking for his brother I sez to him, "Hav'n't you found him yet?" And he sez to me, "No suh. Reckon he mosta missed the train caze he writ he wuz a comin'." Course I hain't seed him since we wuz four year old but some nawthern hunters told me all about him . . ."

All my life I have been trying to tell

How to Handle a Fortune

Some months ago I reported in the Clarion how Mel Bate's uncle died up north, and left him with a tidy fortune.

Naturally, our town was curious to see how Mel would spend it: Traveling around the world . . . getting a new house or car . . . wearing fancy clothes . . . or dining on cold pheasant and champagne . . .?

We can now report, Mel hasn't changed a bit! Drop in on him any night, and you'll find him in his shirt sleeves by the fire, chatting with the Missus, sharing a mellow glass of beer with friends.

From where I sit, Mel has learned the art of handling money — as well as handling people. You don't let cash-in-the-bank push you around any more than you let people push you around. If you like the simple, homey life; companionship and quiet ways; a glass of beer and friendly talk — that's worth a fortune, after all!

GATEWAY AMENDMENT NOT UNDERSTOOD

Voters at the Polls Tuesday seemed not to understand the Gateway Amendment proposition. It was defeated, the 5th time since 1892. Illinois voters favored it by a vote of 3 to 1, but it lost because it did not receive the majority of all votes cast. It those who did not understand it, and therefore did not vote for it, would have voted for it, there is great possibility that it would have passed.

This Amendment was proposed to change the rule of majority votes to two-thirds of the votes cast.

It appears now that the Veteran's Bonus Plan has passed. If in the final count, it is found to be a fact that the bonus passed, it will mean that a lump cash payment averaging nearly $400 for each veteran, which would start in 1947 or 1948, to the state's more than 900,000 World War II veterans.

What You Should Know About

HOME FREEZERS

Before you buy a home freezer it is well to consider all the facts so you will know which unit will suit your purpose. You may have asked yourself "What advantages are there in a home freezer for me? What type do I need?" The answers to these questions depend on the size of your family, your home, and the availability of fresh foods.

Home freezers were not manufactured during the war, but the fortunate housewives who were "freezing" voiced their approval with such enthusiasm and wholehearted praise that women the country over decided they must have one. Many companies will have freezers available later in the year.

What are the advantages of a freezer?

Meal planning ceases to depend on the seasons or local markets when you have a home freezer. With a variety of frozen foods on hand (home and commercially frozen foods, including breads, pies, cakes and ice cream) meals can be prepared on a moment's notice. Unexpected guests can be served fine "company dinners" ... meals which ordinarily would take long hours of planning, shopping and preparing. Out-of-season foods can be enjoyed at your table as fresh as they were in the garden months earlier and at as low a cost as when they were in season.

For those of you who grow fruits and vegetables, or have easy access to quantities of foods from local farms or markets, freezing will save time, vital food values, flavor and color. Actual time studies show that preservation by freezing takes approximately 1/3 the time required for home canning or dehydrating foods.

What size and style will you need?

You can estimate the size you will need by planning on one cubic foot as adequate for about 30 pounds of frozen food.

Many new household refrigerators have a low temperature compartment which may meet your requirements if your family is small or if there is no suitable location for a freezer.

For the family of average needs there are many types of home freezers. The chest-type is waist high and designed to fit into a utility room, basement or kitchen. Upright freezers are styled like your refrigerator and open from the front.

How to get the most from a freezer

Preparing foods for freezing must be done with care. The manufacturer of your home freezer will provide complete instructions. By following those simple directions you will get the most satisfaction from your freezer.

The operation of a freezer is just as simple as that of an electric refrigerator. It has to be defrosted only two or three times a year because it is not opened as often as a refrigerator. Home freezers can be plugged into any wall outlet and operate at a monthly cost slightly higher than a standard refrigerator of the same capacity.

FREE copies of our interesting new booklet "Facts about Home Freezers," may be obtained at your Public Service store or by writing the company.

HOT NEWS Enthusiasm for helicopters flamed to new heights recently when the Army's Sikorsky R-6A helicopter made 75 flights over the Mexican volcano Paracutin. American and Mexican volcanologists hovered within 300 feet of the blazing furnace, in the tiny craft. Despite convection currents, turbulent air and torrid temperatures, it provided a stable platform for viewing one of the most dramatic spectacles ever staged by Ma Nature. Luckily there was absolutely no engine trouble. Without so much as singeing an eyebrow, the experts came back with data about the core of the volcano, unusual lava flow formations, exciting night films and information that is expected to lead to greater accuracy in predicting the position of thunder storms and additional safety factors in flight operations. That's really taking a nice "cake of learning out of an oven!"

WING DIP Thirty Civil Air Patrol Cadets of the Bucyrus, Ohio Squadron were cleaning out their indoor rifle range in observance of National Fire Week, when they received an emergency call. Almost all the local firemen had rushed to one fire, when another one broke out on the opposite side of the city. The Cadets (all between the ages of 15 and 17) celebrated the week appropriately by helping put out the fire in a big apartment building, guiding tenants to safety, operating fire hoses and guarding the much travelled New York, Chicago Railroad which runs just back of the building. Congratulations, Cadets, on showing how the Civil Air Patrol emergency service program is ready to tackle trouble in all parts of the Nation. There are over 6,000 members of Civil Air Patrol, an Auxiliary of the AAF, ready for instant XX call to action in the State of Illinois.

NEWS NOTES Rubinkam Airport Pilots recently seen visiting at Harlem Airport were Jack Morton, Linda Tattersfield, Fred Henning, Ray Robinson and Emery Nadler. All attended a Civil Air Patrol meeting with Lt. Col. Gordon Da Costa, Illinois State Wing Commander.

'Bye till next week!

TOMORROW LAST DAY OF RACING AT AURORA DOWNS

Sulky fans got an early Christmas present this week when the horsemen the track authorities and the state harness commission all agreed that it would be a good thing to extend the Aurora Downs night harness racing meeting for two weeks, closing on November 16th instead of November 2. Owners and trainers of some 300 horses made the suggestion and the Aurora Downs officials quickly acquiesced and presented an official petition to the Illinois Harness Racing Commission. In view of the 60 days allowed each track, the commission agreed to extend the meet from 41 night to 53 night. Preston H. Jenulne, Secretary, was directed by Chairman E. J. Hayes, DuQuoin, E. V. Champion, Peoria and R. A. Warren, East Moline, to issue the permit.

While this week opened the additional racing period, it was not without a close association with last week's program. After raining each Thursday night for three weeks, thereby eliminating Ladies night, the weatherman shifted the weekly rain to Wednesday.

The Army Ground Forces offers you
A NEW LIFE OUT THERE

Look toward Korea and Japan! A thrilling new job and a new life—with interesting work, sports, entertainment and travel opportunities—can be had for the asking by qualified young men who volunteer for the 1st Cavalry, 11th Airborne, 6th, 7th, 24th or 25th Infantry Divisions.

What an opportunity . . . what a job! Training in one of these crack units will stand you in good stead wherever you go. Study a foreign language. Learn the fascinating details of Military Government—so vital to future peace and prosperity.

Japan's "Isles of Pines" are but a sample of the attractions of an Army career in the Far East. The Army has reopened comfortable hotels, theaters, swimming pools, tennis clubs, golf courses, ball parks. These—familiar haunts of pre-war tourists—and many new developments—provide a broad choice of recreation.

Not everyone can measure up to this job. Only 3-year enlistees who meet prescribed physical and mental standards can enjoy the benefits of such a job. High overseas pay, good food and lodging and a generous retirement plan make your future in the Army Ground Forces too good to miss! See your nearest Army Recruiting Officer for full details.

• Listen to "Sound Off," "Warriors of Peace," "Voice of the Army," "Proudly We Walk," and Major Football Broadcasts on your radio.

TELEPHONE SERVICE requires a maze of wires and much complex equipment. To install, operate and maintain this equipment takes a lot of highly skilled people—around 40,000 at Illinois Bell.

IT IS FUNDAMENTAL with Illinois Bell to pay good wages. Good wages are paid to attract and hold the kind of employees needed to provide you with the kind of service you want.

SINCE 1940 our payroll has more than doubled, partly because of an increase in force, but largely because of general pay increases. Sixty cents out of every dollar we receive is paid out in wages.

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAU, Chicago—670 on your dial

THE gray days of early winter have arrived at last, after Mother Nature treated us to one of the most glorious fall seasons in many years. Speaking of fall, the profits of chicken flock owners can fall quickly, too, unless poultrymen take steps to lengthen the work day for their flocks through the use of artificial lighting.

Extra lighting can stimulate egg production just as much as the natural daylight of long spring and summer seasons. With the abundance of automatic timing devices available for light control, the task is simple and inexpensive. With these automatic controls, lights can be turned on at any desired hour to provide a total day of 13 or 14 hours.

Poultry raisers must remember, however, that their use of artificial lighting should be consistent and regular hours must be maintained after the lights are once put into operation. Do not expect immediate results from this system because it may take from two to four weeks for a hen to become adjusted and respond with high egg production.

In most cases, poultrymen can use one 40-watt bulb in a cone-shaped reflector for every 200 feet of floor space. Don't forget too, hours of work can be eliminated by installing extra feeders, saving labor and maintaining normal feed consumption. Also keep plenty of clean water before the birds. Next time you're in town, check on some of these labor-saving devices and take them back to the farm. You'll be glad you did. Good luck, everybody.

KEEP FROM BETWEEN PARKED CARS

WINNERS SERIES, SECOND NATIONAL POSTER CONTEST
NOVEMBER
Issued by CHICAGO MOTOR CLUB

"Keep from Between Parked Cars" is the vital safety lesson being dramatized to school children this month in 38,000 classrooms throughout Indiana and Illinois in posters being distributed by the Chicago Motor Club. The illustrations originated in the ranks of school children themselves, the posters being reproductions of prize-winning drawings that they submitted in a nationwide contest. Instruction sheets accompanying the poster aid teachers to adapt the safety lessons effectively to the needs of pupils of all ages in diversified localities.

"LOVER COME BACK"

FEATURED AT ROXY

George Brent's coat of arms was a wolf and chisel and on Lucille Ball it looked good in "Lover Come Back" which will be featured at the Roxy theatre at Lockport, Wednesday and Thursday.

Brent is seen as a roving eyed war correspondent, who returns home from Europe with his photographer aide, a famous camerawoman, Miss Ball, his wife known as America's best dressed woman, discovers the photographer to be her rival and her husband an efficient philanderer as well as a famous correspondent. After the triangle makes many complicated rounds, Miss Ball decides that she will divorce her husband. In Las Vegas, Nevada where the divorce is to take place, the story reaches the hilarious conclusion and the happy ending is preceded with some of the most comically suspenseful situations ever to be filmed.

"Monsieur Beaucaire" with Bob Hope and Joan Caulfield will be the featured billing at the Roxy theatre Sunday thru Tuesday.

QUOTES OF THE WEEK

"I just get tired of them!"—
Mildred G. Underwood, Chattanooga, Tenn., after 16th divorce from eight different husbands.

The spotlight of safety education for Indiana and Illinois school children focuses during October on school safety patrol with the distribution by the Chicago Motor Club to class rooms throughout its territory of posters counseling youngsters to "Obey Your Safety Patrol." Regarded by safety authorities as the most important activity in school children's protective safety, the know-how of effective school safety patrol work is clearly outlined in material supplementing the posters to aid teachers in applying the lessons to students of all ages under the differing conditions which may prevail in individual localities. The poster is dramatically illustrated with a prize-winning drawing by a school child in a recent nation-wide contest.

Veterans' SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Children Get Benefits

Approximately 90,000 children whose fathers died as a result of World War II service are receiving monthly compensation benefits, ranging from $15.60 to $30 per month, Veterans' administration announces.

Widows of these deceased veterans are entitled to receive $60 per month for themselves and $18 for one child plus $15.60 each for any additional children. In the event that both parents are deceased, the child's legal guardian receives $30 per month. If there are two children, the guardian receives $45.60, plus $12 for each additional child.

Recent legislation removed previous restrictions as to the total amount payable in these cases. In effect, the law authorizes compensation for each child surviving the veteran regardless of the number of children and grants a 20 per cent increase in payments. All children are entitled to this compensation until they reach the age of 18 unless they marry before that time. In the event a child becomes mentally or physically incompetent, payments will be continued during the incompetency. Benefits also may continue after the age of 18 while the child is going to school, but cease upon his reaching the age of 21 years.

Questions and Answers

Q. My son has been in service 18 months, has been overseas a year and is still in Berlin. He didn't make an allotment to me as we didn't know he could, and I have just found out nearly every one drew allotments from sons in service, which I could have done if I had known about it. He sent me a little money he could spare and bought himself a bond each month. I do not own a farm, just rent, only milk a few cows. Have five children under 16, all in school except one. I wonder if I could draw any back pay for the time he has been gone, also start drawing now. I surely need it.—Mrs. P. O. D., Seymour, Mo.

A. Your son is at fault in this matter, since all men going into the service and especially when they go overseas are thoroughly briefed concerning their dependents and their allotment rights. Their dependents are entered on their service records. I do not think you can get back allotment but, if your son will ask his commanding officer for an allotment for you, he can obtain it since it is entirely voluntary on the part of your son. There have been rare instances where the war department has recognized claims for back pay in these cases, however, and to be sure, you should write to the Office of Dependency Benefits, War Department, Newark 2, N. J., and explain your case.

Q. Is it true that I don't have to pay the premiums on my husband's national service insurance as he is a disabled veteran of World War II, and will I get the money back which I have already paid?—Mrs. C.E.B., Lewistown, Pa.

A. No, it is not necessarily true. Veterans' administration says that a veteran of World War II must be totally disabled for a period of at least six months before he is eligible to make application for a waiver of his premium payments, and that this waiver, if granted, shall not affect any premiums which become due more than a year before the application for a waiver was received by the VA. There is no money returned. Suggest you consult with your local VA office or with your local post of the American Legion.

Q. My son went overseas in March, 1944. In May he wrote for us to fix allotment papers and in June they began taking out of his pay and did so until he died in December, 1944. Can we get that pay?—Mrs. B. W., Pontotoc, Miss.

A. Yes, and also six months additional pay. Write to the Office of Dependency Benefits, War Department, Newark 2, N. J., and explain your case fully, giving your son's full name, serial number, the date and manner of his death, if you know. Your answer may be delayed, since this department of the army is in process of moving to St. Louis.

Q. I am a widow of a veteran of World War I who died while in France. I never did receive an allotment or any of his insurance. Am I due anything?—Mrs. R. L. K., New Hope, Ala.

A. If you are the legal widow of a veteran who died in France in World War I you are entitled to his insurance, if he had government insurance. You also are entitled to a widow's pension. Suggest that you contact your nearest Veterans' administration office, probably at Birmingham or Mobile, and give them full particulars of your case.

Better Diets

In the last 37 years the consumption of citrus fruit has increased 350 per cent and that of potatoes and grains decreased 30 per cent, according to a report analyzing per capita food consumption in the United States. During the recent war, the nutritive value of the average civilian diet actually improved. The mineral and vitamin value of the daily meals have improved due to higher consumption of milk, meat, eggs, green and yellow vegetables and citrus fruits and to bread and flour enrichment.

Disposal Pit

One of the best investments on a farm is a disposal pit for dead birds and other small animals. A pit 6 to 8 feet in diameter and 8 feet deep, walled up with rocks and covered with 2 feet of dirt, will provide a place for all birds which die during the course of several years. A 12 inch tile intake in the top covered by a small tub is convenient and it keeps the odor in and the flies out. If the dead birds accumulate faster than they decay, add quick lime occasionally.

Deadly Poison

A new super-deadly poison, the most potent known to man, has been developed by the special projects division of the chemical warfare service. An innocent-looking crystalline toxin, the poison is so powerful that an inch-cube size of it—roughly an ounce—could kill every person living in the United States and Canada, silently, swiftly.

Fire Causes

Underwriters association lists causes of farm fires in the approximate order of their importance. They are lightning; defective chimneys and heating apparatus; matches and smoking; combustible roofs; spontaneous ignition; gasoline and kerosene; electricity; and miscellaneous causes.

Hereditary Deafness

Only one type of deafness is considered hereditary by the medical profession. That type is due to otosclerosis—the thickening of a tiny bone in the inner ear. The fact that one or both parents are so affected, however, does not necessarily mean that the ailment will reappear in the children.

Deafness Progresses

Deafness progresses with age; most persons reaching the handicapped stage wait two to five years before they can bring themselves to wear a hearing aid; 40 per cent of the persons so handicapped never adopt a hearing aid.

Milk Consuming State

Pennsylvania is the second greatest milk consuming state, but ninth in milk production. The Keystone state ranks fourth in the amount of cash farm income from milk, fifth in respect to the value of her heifers, and 10th in the number of cows.

Meningitis Caused Deafness

Meningitis used to leave many hopeless cases of deafness; such cases were numerous among veterans of World War I. Treatment with streptomycin, penicillin and sulfa drugs has almost eliminated this type of deafness.

Resistant to Altitude

Birds in general are extremely resistant to altitude. Wild geese have been observed flying as high as 29,000 feet, and crows, storks, cranes and finches frequently fly at 20,000-foot altitudes.

Cows Need Water

In full milk flow, an average size cow needs from 150 to 350 pounds of water daily. Water supplies 87 per cent of the total content of milk and 56 per cent of the total body weight of the cow.

Lice Affect Hogs

Lice lower the vitality of hogs and make them more susceptible to diseases. Waste motor oil is effective in controlling the pests. It may be applied by sprayer, mop, or by rubbing or oiling posts.

Hearing Casualties

The Veterans' administration indicates that at least 40,000 war-

Chicken Diet

Investigations in a number of different laboratories have revealed that the growing chicken needs 13 different vitamins including vitamins A, D, E and K, thiamin, riboflavin, pantothenic acid, nicotinic acid, pyridoxin, biotin, choline, inositol and folic acid. All of these vitamins can be supplied as crystalline compounds, and chickens grow normally when fed such a combination of pure vitamins in conjunction with a suitable combination of purified carbohydrate, protein, fat and mineral salts.

Ventilate Poultry Houses

Electric fans are the latest attempt to reduce excess moisture in poultry houses. Moisture means more cleaning, higher susceptibility of flocks to varied ills, and may drastically cut egg production. Many poultrymen report excellent success with electrical ventilation. Overall results, however, are mixed. Some poultry experts claim fans are no better than gravity-operated flues. Fans work when the air is heavy and damp while flues do not.

Cantaloupes Nutritious

Cantaloupes of top quality are an excellent source of vitamin C. A half cantaloupe will furnish about as much vitamin C as a third of a glass of orange juice. In addition to vitamin C, cantaloupes also contain other vitamins and valuable minerals which help balance body chemistry. They are also rich in sugar.

Kills Japanese Beetles

Used either in traps, or as a spray or dust, DDT has proved to be one of the most effective killers of Japanese beetles. Traps in which the beetles drop through the baited top, to hit a surface or wick loaded with DDT have saved much trouble in emptying traps, yet kill all the beetles.

Conservation Districts

There are now considerably more than 1,600 organized soil conservation districts in the nation, with new districts being organized at the rate of almost one a day. These farmer-managed districts are assisted by trained technicians who help the farmers put conservation practices to use on their land.

Handicapped by Deafness

Judged from extensive population sampling, between five and seven million Americans have serious hearing impairments of one or both ears; about half this number have both ears affected to such a degree as to be seriously handicapped.

More Milk Per Acre

Wilted hay made into silage provides almost 16 per cent more milk per acre of land than the same forage made into field-cured hay, according to studies at the Beltsville Research center of the department of agriculture.

Damaged Egg

A fertile egg that is allowed to remain exposed to high summer heat in the nest or in the field all day will show definite germ development and damage by nightfall. If left two days, damage can be clearly noted by candling.

Forest Fires

Forest fire losses in 1945 exceeded $25,000,000 for the country as a whole, mostly in unprotected areas. This was nearly $1,000,000 over the 1944 loss, although the number of fires was down 5 per cent.

Strawberry Jam

Strawberry and raspberry jams and preserves made from frozen berries that have been stored for several months are as good as those made from fresh fruit during the berry season.

Medicinal Herb

Ma Huang, an herb derived from an Oriental shrub, was used for 5,000 years in China before technicians discovered in 1924 that the active principle of Ma Huang is ephedrine.

DOAN'S PILLS

The Sweeping Tides

by H. M. EGBERT W. N. U. SERVICE

Mark Darrell, young American lumberman, is boss of a lumber camp near St. Victor, Canada. Nat Page is his assistant. Mark has fallen in love with Madeleine Kinross, the young widow who owns the timberland. She returns his affection, but tells him that she believes her husband is still alive, so that there is no hope of marriage. Her lawyer, Horace Broussac, also is a suitor. Broussac has made several cash offers to Mark to get out, the last for $15,000. He tells Mark that he intends to marry Madeleine, to gain her property as well as herself. Mark visits the parish priest to try to learn the truth about Eric Kinross. The priest tells him simply, "Madame Kinross is not for you."

CHAPTER VII

The lighthouse had just begun to flash its one-two, one-two of warning through the night when Mark made his way along the natural bridge, and down the steps toward Madeleine's cottage.

He kept a sharp lookout for Andre Galipeault, but the old man was evidently in the lighthouse. And, in the twilight, Mark was knocking at Madeleine's door.

She came out, she stood holding the sides of the door, looking at Mark, her breath coming and going quickly.

"Madeleine!"

He took her hands in his, and still she stood looking at him, unresisting, her gray eyes luminous.

"I've been to see Father Lacombe. I told him that I loved you. I thought it right to do so. I asked him what happened on the ice-floe, and he refused to answer me."

"He will not answer me," said the girl. "They know—but I am not permitted to know what happened to my husband. When I said that he was still alive you thought me crazy. Now you understand."

"But, if he is alive, where is he? Who knows?"

"Those four know—Andre, Hector Mackintosh, Alphonse Vitard, and Father Lacombe. But I must never know. My husband is alive somewhere, I know, and insane as the result of his exposure. He was never quite sane. He would drink until a kind of devil took possession of him, and then he would fight a dozen men at a time, and beat them. He was the most adored and hated man on the lower St. Lawrence."

"I know he is living, mad, somewhere, and they will not tell me."

"Madeleine, I love you!"

"Ah, what is the use of telling me that? Do you not see my fate? I married the seigneur when I was fifteen because I was forced into it—and also because he fascinated me. I was proud to be chosen wife of the seigneur. And there was never any other woman in his life. He had always loved me. And there was my father's little property. What could I do?"

"Now I know that he is alive, for father Lacombe has told me that I must remain a widow all my days—I, who was married half-an-hour before the fleet sailed, and did not even know what marriage meant."

"Do you see, my friend? Do you see, my dear?" She laid her hand on Mark's face and stroked it gently.

"Then we must not see each other again?"

"We must try not to meet again."

"Then I shall give up my lease," said Mark.

She caught her breath sharply. "Ah, but Horace Broussac? He believes in nothing. He laughs at Father Lacombe. He wants me to marry him in Quebec, come back, defy them all. I am afraid of him. I have thought and thought, and I think that I shall go away. I have a cousin who is a sempstress in Quebec. She will take me in. I cannot bear it any longer."

"We must try not to meet again."

"Then I shall give up my lease," said Mark.

She caught her breath sharply. "Ah, but Horace Broussac? He believes in nothing. He laughs at Father Lacombe. He wants me to marry him in Quebec, come back, defy them all. I am afraid of him. I have thought and thought, and I think that I shall go away. I have a cousin who is a sempstress in Quebec. She will take me in. I cannot bear it any longer."

'We Must Try Not To Meet Again'

She was weeping, weeping desolately in Mark's arms, and he bent and kissed her tear-stained cheek. They stood looking at each other hopelessly.

"Can't you speak to Father Lacombe and find out whether your husband is really alive?" asked Mark.

She shook her head. "He would not answer me," she said.

"Why not?"

"Because it would violate the secrets of the confessional."

"You mean that those three men have told him the truth? If that is the case, old Andre knows."

"Yes, Andre knows, but he has never told me a word. There was a time when I used to plead with him. Now I have learned enough to keep silent."

"I'll make him talk," said Mark grimly.

"No," answered Madeleine.

"There is nothing more to be said. Everything that could possibly be said has been said in the past five years. You must go, Mark, and we must try not to meet again."

"I'll give up the lease," said Mark once more.

For a moment he held her close to him, and their lips met. Then Mark turned away toward the bridge. But not before he had seen Andre Galipeault standing at the lighthouse entrance, a bitter sneer upon his bearded face.

Had he been a witness of that good-bye? Mark didn't care, for he realized that he was through. St. Victor had got him down, with its secrecy, its furtiveness, its hugging of its own mysteries to its breast.

But what about Broussac? Mark didn't mind the ignominy of having to go to Broussac and accept his offer. But he had promised to protect Madeleine against the lawyer. Now it seemed that he must abandon even this small dream. Yes, St. Victor had got him down, with its pertinacity, its dogged resolution.

It was fast growing dark as Mark made his way down the slope toward his shack in the little clearing. The one-two flash of the lighthouse was growing clearer. There came the resonant bellow of the foghorn, and, looking back, Mark saw that one of the white mists was creeping up the St. Lawrence. Even as he watched, it blotted out the lighthouse and the rocks, crept upward until the bridge disappeared, began to envelop him with its clammy arms.

Mark hit the trail, groping through the mists toward his cabin. On the morrow he would tell Nat that he had decided to relinquish his lease, write to his backers. At least there would be a small but substantial profit coming to them. That night he would be glad of the solitude of the shack. That night he would fight out his battle alone.

He was almost at the shack when suddenly he saw the bearded face of Andre Galipeault rise out of a clump of bushes. At the same instant he was conscious of a violent blow upon the back of the head. He swung about, with flailing fists, to see two other men, unknown to him, standing over him, with clubs in their hands.

As Mark struck, Andre hit him from behind. The mist-wrapped scene began to swim before Mark's eyes, and he felt his knees begin to buckle. Fighting desperately, he was borne down, and once more a stunning blow dropped upon his temple.

He fell, and everything went out in darkness; consciousness itself became extinct.

Mark Gives Up, and Awaits the End

Mark could not have been out for long. He came to, to find himself lying upon the floor of his cabin, his head aching dully from the blows he had received. He tried to move, and found that he was unable to do more than flex his fingers. For a while he lay still in sheer exhaustion, until a sudden flare of flame showed him that the bush around the cabin was on fire.

He tried to move his limbs again, and now discovered that he was tightly roped, so that all motion was practically impossible. His arms were fastened to his body at the wrists and elbows, his legs bound in a similar way, and he himself was bound to one of the corner uprights of the hut.

The glare was growing brighter. Torrents of smoke came pouring into the cabin. Through the entrance Mark could see a long line of fire running toward the bridge, and sweeping in a wide curve about him.

With that he realized his predicament. One day more, and his announced determination to give up the lease would have meant security. Broussac, for some reason driven to this desperate course, had had him tied in the cabin, which would shortly be ablaze.

The ropes with which he was tied would, of course, shrivel into ashes. There would be nothing to show that Mark had not been overcome by the smoke while he was asleep.

He began to struggle desperately in his bonds, without the least result. Try as he might, he could not move a limb. At last he gave up the fight and lay, panting, waiting for the end.

All the woods about the bridge seemed afire. Dense torrents of smoke came pouring into the cabin, and rose above the tree-tops. The crackling of the running flames grew louder and spires of fire shot up and vanished in the curling smoke-wreaths.

Mark tried again. He put forth every effort of the muscles of his strong body. Once the ropes seemed to slip, but they grew tight again. And it was growing insufferably hot inside the cabin. The surge of smoke was stifling. Mark gasped as he tried to draw his breath.

They'd think he had been overcome by the smoke while he was asleep, and burned to a crisp, and nobody would know that he had already decided to relinquish his lease of the seignior.

"But what about Madeleine?"

If the seigneur was really alive, what about Broussac? Mark felt trapped. He was not fighting Father Lacombe, he was fighting all St. Victor, and he had always felt that from the beginning.

Again he fought furiously against his bonds, and again unsuccessfully. The hut was filled with smoke now. Mark drew in great, gasping lungfuls of it, and felt consciousness going out in death.

Nat Page, down at the mill, watched the cloud of smoke slowly thicken through the white mist that had crept in from the Gulf. That mist had blotted out everything. It had made St. Victor a phantom village, obliterating the houses, and the masts of the fishing-schooners that lay off the wharf. The very voices that called to one another from doorway to doorway seemed strange, since their owners were no longer distinguishable.

Alphonse Vitard, the mayor, was closeted with Hector Mackintosh, the landlord, in a back room of the hotel. There were two glasses and a bottle of spirits upon the table between them, and at first sight you might have thought the two men were drunk. It was only after another glance that it became evident that they were not drunk—only shaking with mortal fear.

There was a fumbling at the door, and Andre Galipeault, of the lighthouse, staggered in. His face was blanched a deathly white above his gray beard. He dropped into a chair, poured himself out a glass of raw spirits, and drained it.

"Eh, well?" asked Alphonse Vitard.

"We have done what we agreed to do. Have we not wives and families? Are not our own lives at stake? Why should we die and our families starve, because an outsider comes into St. Victor to spy?"

"I have sometimes wondered," said Hector Mackintosh, "whether that Monsieur Darrell was really a spy. It may be that he was honest. He certainly was a lumberman."

"What have we to do with that?" shouted Andre. "Who gave us our orders? Monsieur Broussac. Who threatened us with the loss of our lives, or at least, swore that we should never see St. Victor again, unless we did what he told us? Who showed us that cabled dispatch from France?"

Three Men Are Filled With Fear and Horror

"They stared at one another with white, quivering faces."

"Where is the American?" demanded Alphonse Vitard.

"Dead! Dead! A crisp in what is left of the blazing hut," answered Andre. "I tied him and left him there. Ma foi, it was our lives against his, I tell you."

"Hush, don't speak so loud," whispered Hector Mackintosh, glancing apprehensively at the door. "What of Father Lacombe?"

"He shall never know."

"Then we—we are damned," whispered Mackintosh.

"There are other priests to whom to make confession," mumbled Alphonse Vitard. "When one's own life is at stake, and the well-being of one's little ones, one has to fight. Bien, are we sinners because we chose that one man should die in place of all of us?"

"But the seigneur did not die," whispered Hector Mackintosh. "I tell you the whole thing should never have been covered up. We were fools."

"And Horace Broussac was a knave, to keep the money that was raised from the seigneur's lands. I pity Horace when the seigneur gets his hands on him."

"Where is he?" asked Andre.

"Listen!" Alphonse Vitard grasped him by the shoulder. "Did you see Horace Broussac's yacht steal into the harbor just before the fog shut down? Do you think he is going to stay and face the seigneur? I tell you he is going to get that girl to sail away with him."

"Dieu, no!" shouted old Andre, springing to his feet.

Hector Mackintosh put out a brawny hand and forced him down into his chair again. "Don't be a fool, Andre," he said. "You will ruin everything. Horace is too clever for you and me."

"Aye, but the seigneur, the seigneur! God pity Horace Broussac if the seigneur gets his hands on him!"

PAUL MINISTERS TO THE THESSALONIANS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:1-7; I Thessalonians 1:2-3.
MEMORY SELECTION—Be not weary in well-doing.—II Thessalonians 3:13.

A great city, commercially active, religious to a high degree, a military center and a harbor so fine that it is important to this day—such was the city of Thessalonica. It presented a challenge to the preachers of the gospel and, in the name of Christ, Paul accepted and won a great victory.

In the face of persecution, bitter and persistent, the believers in this city remained faithful. The reason for that appears in our lesson. Rooted and grounded in Christ, they had brought forth the fruit of real Christian living under circumstances which were difficult and trying. Our lesson tells of both the preaching of the gospel by Paul and the living of the gospel by the Thessalonians.

I. The Gospel Preached—Accepted and Rejected (Acts 17:1-7).

Paul began his long and successful ministry in Thessalonica in the synagogue. It was to the Jews who worshiped the one true God that he came with his message about their expected Messiah—Christ the Lord. Here he established a strong church.

What was the message which so signally succeeded in this great strategic center? Well, it was not (as some modern preachers in large cities seem to think necessary) a series of social, political, or literary discourses. Paul preached Christ. He reasoned with them and presented the Saviour (v. 3) as One who was

1. Dead for our sin. These people were like us in that they needed a solution for their sin problem.

Without the death of Christ there is no salvation for any man. Only through the shedding of blood can there be remission of sin (Heb. 9:22). Paul had no part in the folly of a "bloodless gospel"—as though there were any such gospel.

2. Raised for our justification. It was not enough that Jesus died, marvelous as that is in our sight. For many a man has died for his convictions, but none has risen from the dead. Christ could not be holden of the grave. He arose the victorious Redeemer.

3. Declared to be the Christ. He is more than a man, more than a great leader and an earnest teacher. He is God's anointed One, himself divine—and our Lord.

Some believed (v. 4), including many devout Greeks, and not a few of the leading women. The gospel does have life-giving power as the Holy Spirit applies it to the hearts of willing men and women.

Others opposed (vv. 5, 6). Note that they were "of the baser sort." They always are, even when they appear to be cultivated and educated, for there is something fundamentally wrong in a life which rejects Christ.

It was a serious charge they made against the Christians (v. 7), for it was treason punishable by death to have any other king but Caesar if one lived in a Roman colony.

But the thing which they hated worst in these Christians was the fact that their topsy-turvy world was in danger of being set right (they put it the opposite way, v. 6), and they did not want to be made right. It is interesting to note that these early preachers had divine power to turn over the social order. Would that we showed more of that power in the church today!

Accepting the truth is good, but it must go on in daily living. The Thessalonians knew that and they are models of

II. The Gospel Lived—Followers and Examples (I Thess. 1:2-3).

Paul, the missionary, was a courteous preacher. He recognized the faithfulness of Christian brethren and did not hesitate to commend them. We could do more of that when we meet true and faithful believers.

They were followers of Paul, but only because he followed Christ (v. 6). His power was from above (v. 5), even as they also were chosen from above (v. 4).

Following Christ meant affliction to them (v. 6), but it also meant the joy of the Holy Spirit, which is entirely independent of the circumstances of life—and above them.

These Thessalonian believers were examples of what it meant to be Christians. Wherever Paul went their faith toward God was recognized and he did not need to explain or argue for his gospel. People knew the Thessalonian Christians, and thus they knew real Christianity.

There could be no finer witness to the faith of anyone than to be able to bear testimony that it is an example—a model—to which others may look and not go astray. Do we dare to measure our Christian lives by such a standard?

A Chintz-Covered Chest for Blankets

IF STORAGE space is in demand here is a solution to the problem. Make a simple substantial wooden box with a hinged lid and then do a really good job of covering it with a flounced skirt and attached top cushion.

Place this chest at the foot of your bed or use it as a seat under a window and it will harmonize perfectly with other furnishings.

Pattern 259 gives large diagrams and directions for making the wooden box, also illustrated step-by-step directions for covering it. A complete list of all materials is included. To order this pattern, send 15c with name and address direct to:

PICK YOUR CORN EARLY!

Dry It In Crib, with Behlen All-Steel
 Ventilators and Tunnels

New, modern, fast way to dry corn. No more waiting for corn to dry in fields. Pick early, when mechanical pickers work best. Crib it, and let Behlen Ventilators and Tunnels dry corn faster than you ever dreamed possible.

GOODBYE TO CORN BORERS!

Agricultural colleges and experimental stations recommend picking early, to help control corn borers. You get your corn into cribs to dry, and shred or chop stalks and plow under before ground freezes, to kill the borers.

Behlen Tunnels not only ventilate, but are very handy for shelling. Just run sheller "drag" into tunnel, as at left. Pull out tunnel sections one by one. Corn drops onto conveyor belt. Saves hours of labor!

COME IN NOW!

Don't wait. We have Behlen All-Steel Ventilators and Corn Tunnels on hand now. But due to present industrial situation, we cannot promise we will get any more this fall. We strongly urge you to come in right away, while we are still able to supply you. Cost is less than for old-style wood ventilators.
